THE FIFTH EAPTIST CHURCH. A Site Purchased for a New Church Edifice The Fifth Baptist Church has purchased for $6,000 of J. J. Darlington, trustee, subs 39 to 42, square 465, 84.5 by 74.66 feet, corner of E and 61/4 streets southwest. This is the congregation of Rev. Dr. C. C. Meador, located for over thirty years past on D between 414 and 6th streets, in close proximity to the railroad. The round house and shops formerly adjoined it and now there is a freight depot. The present intention of the congregation is to sell the D street property and erect on the new site a fine church edifice. This will make the Baptists near neighbors of St. Dominic's Catholic and Dr. Bittinger's Presbyterian congregations.

According to his story he started out with $5 with which to pay Mr. Gary and Mrs. Martha Drew to take part in the conert, the former to get $3 and the latter $2. His story concerning the robbery was that he was walking on 15th street, just around the corner from the Louise Home, when he was stepped by two colored men. They were roughlooking men, he says, and one of them held a pistol to his head while the other took his $5. He says he made no outery, and the men walked away. From there he walked to police head-quarters, and did not even make a complaint to a policeman whom he met on the street. The police are not wasting much time on the

Two Cases of Theft.

Among the prisoners in the Police Court to day was a young colored man named G. Washington and he declared that it was his first arrest for dishonesty. He was charged with having taken a silver dollar belonging to Mr. C. F. Arabin. George was sorry for what he had done and he told the truth about it. Judge Kimball gave him the benefit of his truthful-ness by fining him $10 or thirty days, instead of giving him a just sentence.

A white woman named Theresa Taylor, who is also called Annie Taylor, was tried on a charge of stealing a piece of cloth, a ring and a pair of earrings from A. J. Curtis. She was given four months.

From the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

There was one feature of the fight between the seventh cavalry and the Sioux at Wounded Knee which indicates in the most unmistakable manner the effect of modern firearms on the defensive, and which is without a parallel in

After the fight was over and the Indians had been killed or captured the cavalry set to work to bury the dead. Suddeniy a shot was heard and a horse fell, wounded. The troops were and a horse fell, wounded. The frops were puzzied to know where the shot came from, but their mystification was soon ended by a puff of smoke from the top of a chimney-like rock on a neighboring bluff, the ring of a rifle ball, followed by the whip-like crack of a Win-chester. An Indian, shot through the shoul-der, had managed to drag himself to the rock and was firing upon the troops as fact as he and was firing upon the troops as fast as he could pull the trigger in his disabled condition. A sound was detailed to silence him, but so well was he covered that not a shot could reach him, while his builets were sent to all parts of the battle ground.

The fact was finally recognized that the solitary wounded Indian with his Winchester completely dominated the field, and that it would cost half a dozen lives to disiodge him. would cost half a dozen lives to dislodge him.

As it was not considered worth while to go to that expense the only thing to be done was to march off. The regiment accordingly withdrew, having been fairly driven off by one wounded man. I know of no similar incident in anthentic history.

BOCK CREEK PARK. The Appraisers Still Listening to the Crossamination of Mr. Trussdall

Yesterday afternoon the Rock creek commission to appraise the property (James I Norris, George J. Seufferle and N. W. Burchell) sat in the Circuit Court room till o'clock and Col. George Truesdell's cross-exmination was not concluded. In answer to Mr. Lambert Col. Truesde

Rules and Regulations for Its Govern dopted by the Con

At the board meeting of the Commissioners this afternoon the following rules and regula-tions for the government of the free bathing beach were enacted: 1. All persons using the beach for bathing purposes are requested to register their names in books kept for that purpose in charge of the said he had valued the properties in reference to sales at the present time; had considered its distance, location, the roads, &c., and described the surroundings of Paris, its villas, &c., and the same as to Boston and other places, remarking that the country around Boston was perfectly beautiful, but art had made it so, while about Washington nature had done most of the work. The effect of the park done most of the work. The effect of the park had been anticipated for some time to come in the increase of value. The withdrawal of the 1,980 acres from the limited territory of the District in the hands of property holders would increase the value, but he could not say as to what extent.

Col. Truesdell was cross-examined by Mr. Col. Truesdell was cross-examined by Mr. Duvall as to the Bex property (parcel 29), which he estimated at $300, and said that its location on the Daniels road (a narrow one) affected its value.

The commission resumed its session this morning and Mr. Sturbit testified in reference to tract 41 that it was of 1½ acres and was worth $1,500.

THE RECORD NOT TO BE PRINTED. Mr. McKenney, for the information of the ommission, said he had called on Messrs. Judd t Detwiler in reference to the printing and they said they could furnish 150 pages per day at $1.25. Mr. Perry said that it would be better for the work to be done at the government print-ing office and in justice to the public printer he would state that his estimate was as to the of jealousy of the fame that clusters round record thus far over $3,000, and they con-cluded that the whole would cost $5,000. Chairman Norris said the commission had considered the subject and they had decided that they would make no further recommend tion as to the printing for the estimate was largely in excess of what they had anticipated, and while admitting the advantages which would accrue, he believed that no great hardship would be done if the counsel had to reply on the type written record n the type written record. MR. TRUESDELL STILL ON.

Col. Truesdell resumed the stand and was cross-examined by Mr. Maddox as to the Page ingtonians not only visited the points of interest about the battlefield of Gettysburg, but were among the guests at the silver wedding of ots had sold at higher rates and hoped that none of the owners would suffer. If he had made a mistake he desired it should be corrected. Rosemont was substantially (excepting for the roads and Rosemont avenue) in and lots with railroad facilities can be bought cheaper than the rates which he understood had been paid in Rosemont.

By Mr. McKenney, for Mrs. Brown, parcel 17—Witness lived perhaps six miles from this tract, going by road. He named the distances of tracts which had been sold in reference to tract 17 Mrs. Brown's and gave the rate per tract 17, Mrs. Brown's, and gave the rate per acre as he understood it.

WANT TO STRIKE OUT. After recess, after Col. Truesdell's cross-ex amination had been continued by Mr. McKenney, the latter moved to strike out his testimony as to tract No. 31-Mrs. Brown's -as he had not shown that he was sufficiently acquainted with the tract to judge of its value.

Mr. Lee joined in the motion as far as the testimony affected parcel 17.

Mr. Perry argued against the motion. Mrs. C. H. Buehler, Miss Annie Danner, Miss Lizzie Buehler, Miss Lillie McCurdy and the Misses McKnight, Valentine, O'Neal, Barnetz,

Goethe at Marienbad

From the Pall Mall Gazette. Marienbad, the favorite watering place those who are overburdened with their quantity of "too, too solid flesh," is at the height of its season, and, as usual, "full up." One of the chief subjects of interest, discussion and general conversation just now is the discovery of an old "visitors' book" at one of the hotels situated on the place in front of the church. It used to answer to the name of "Zur Goldenen Taube," but has recently been dubbed "Goethe Haus" in commemoration of the fact that seventy years ago the poet stayed at it during his first visit to Marienbad. He was then the two following years. In the old visitors' book, which the present proprietor has unearthed. and which is now being gazed at by batch after batch of visitors, the following entry is found under the date of 1823: "I Juli bis 20. August, Herr Johann Wolfgang v. Goethe, Staatsminister aus Weimar." The numbers of the four received Weimar." The numbers of the four rooms of cupied by the 'minister of state' are also given, together with the sum he paid for them. Those who are acquainted with Marienbad prices of the present day may be interested to know that Jose Cardova, aged one hundred and eight about eight weeks, amounted to 420 gulden Another interesting entry in the same must tome from which the information is gathere tells of a visit from the Comte de St. Leu, brother of the Emperor Napoleon I, King of Holland and father of the Emperor Napoleon 111, who stayed at the "Goldenen Taube" for seven weeks in 1819. Caution to Travelers in Kansas.

Shaving in Italy. From the New York Sun.

A few of the Italian barbers here have or ganized for the suppression of the Italian 5 cent shaving shops that abound in the Italian quarters of the city. An American traveler who heard the news said: "I rarely ever paid more than 2 or 3 cents for shaving in Italy. In the small towns there you can find plenty of barbers who shave for 2 cents, if not for 1 cent. In Romo I usually paid 4 cents, but once I paid only 2, and the job was well done for that price. In many places in Great Britain I found I could get shaved for an English penny, with plenty of lather, which is apt to be scanty in Italy. If the nickel barbers of New York raise their rate to a dime they will loss contours. their rate to a dime they will lose customer for plenty of people can't afford more than cents for shaving once a week."

Woman and the Elevator. From the Chicago Tribune.

She comes to the door of the elevator just

it is ready to ascend and asks the conductor "Is Whatyoumaycallhim's office in this build ing?" The conductor says it is. "Is he in?" The answer of the conductor depends on circumstances, of course. "Which floor is his office on?" The answer is given. "You don't know if he is in?" The answer is given. "Well, I guess I'll go up and see. Which floor did you say he is on?" The conductor says the office is on the fourth floor. He says it distinctly. The elevator starts. Reaching the first landing the conductor calls out, "First floor!" The woman who held the elevator at the meeting with Sullivan, for a time blacked the boots of the guests of a big San Francisco hotel, and to those who expressed surprise at seeing a robust man of middle age engaged in work usually performed by boys he often told start crowds to the door and asks, "Is this where I get off?" The conductor tells her that she is to get off at the fourth landing. The that she is to get off at the fourth landing. The elevator starts again and reaches the second landing and it is announced. The woman makes another rush to get out and is restrained by the conductor, who takes her gently by the arm. "Isn't this the fourth floor?" she asks. The conductor says he will let her know in time. The third landing is neede and the asks. The conductor says he will let her know in time. The third landing is made and the same woman rushes again to the door of the car and asks the same question she asked at the other landings. St. Louis, Sept. 2.- A special from Hutchinson, Kan., says: The alliance scheme to defeat he foreclosure of mortgages on homesteads received its quietus so far as this judicial district is concerned in Judge Houk's court yesterday. C. G. Clarke, a lawyer, who has been sending out circular letters to the effect that he could defeat mortgage foreclosures on homesteads, filed a motion in the district court to have such foreclosure set aside. After speaking about two hours on the constitutional rights of American citizens as laid down by Jerry Simpson, Mrs. Leas and others he was coolly informed by Judge Houk that so far from having a case, if he had accepted a fee from his client on the representation that he could prevent foreclosure on such testimony and authority he ought to be prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretenses. eceived its quietus so far as this judicial dis-generally, is a question of general interest, es-Tradesman recently sent out to extensive employers in the south a circular asking the following questions, among others:

4. What degree of efficiency do you find in common and skilled negro labor as compared to white labor in like work? 5. Do you intend to continue the employ ment of negro labor?

6. Are your negro laborers improving in efficiency?
7. What effect has such education as the younger generation has acquired on them as laborers?

8. Does it add to or detract from a negro's efficiency as a laborer, in your opinion, to educate him?

Replies were received from 196 persons residing in all the southern states and employing 7,395 colored workers, of whom 978 are reported to be skilled laborers. The highest wages reported as paid to a skilled laborer are $3 per day, the lowest $1.10, and the average wages of skilled laborers $1.75 per day. The highest wages received by unskilled laborers, as shown by these replies, are $1.50 per day, the lowest 60 cents per day, and the average $1.10 per day. The replies to the fourth question: "What degree of efficiency do you find in common and skilled negro labor as compared to white labor in like work?" are not so general as are the answers to some of the other queries. Briefly in like work?" are not so general as are the answers to some of the other queries. Briefly stated, 27 employers of 1,379 colored workers see no difference as to their capacity as compared with white laborers; 35 employers of 1,441 colored men prefer white labor and 49 employers of 3,214 negroes prefer them to white men in the same capacity.

To the inquiry, "Does it add to the negro's efficiency to educate him?" the answers are very interesting. To questions 7 and 8 concerning this topic there were received 139 answers, most of which were quite brief. Employers, thirty in number, having 2,860 colored answers, most of which were quite brief. Employers, thirty in number, having 2,860 colored employes, say that the amount of education which the younger negroes have received has been of benefit to them, and that it "adds to the efficiency of a negro to educate him." The doubters and those whose replies showed that they had no definite opinion is numbered thirteen and give work to 352 colored men, and ninety-six employers, having 3,820 employes of the negro race, are of the opinion that such education as the younger of the colored race have received has not been of benefit to them, and that, generally speaking, "it detracts from a negro's efficiency to educate him."

A commutee on credentials was then appointed. Rev. H. Watts then addressed the convention. He counseled conservatism and moderation in all deliberations of the convention, and spoke of the necessity for more race pride before respect can be demanded of the white man, and asserted that the southern white man is the friend serted that the southern white man is the friend and not the enemy of the negro, and closed by counseling the accumulation of wealth and the acquisition of practical knowledge as the pre-requisites of success. The topics selected to be passed upon for the benefit of the colored race are industrial education, labor, the status of the colored woman, the separate coach law. Ac
